Fed Poised to Aid Weak Economy

Bernanke: Central bank ready to supply additional stimulus

Washington

Federal Reserve Chairman Ben Bernanke told lawmakers Wednesday the Fed is ready to act if the economy gets weaker. He warned them that allowing the nation to default on its debt would send "shock waves through the entire financial system."

Underscoring how fragile the economy remains two years after the Great Recession, Bernanke laid out three new steps the Fed could take, including a fresh round of government bond purchases designed to stimulate economic growth. "We have to keep all the options on the table. We don't know where the economy is going to go," Bernanke told the House Financial Services Committee.

The Fed chairman stopped short of promising anything, but Wall Street appeared comforted that the central bank was poised to act. The Dow Jones industrial average

Fed chairman Ben Bernanke said Wednesday that a default would be a "major crisis."

Moody's Warning

Moody's Investors Service is threatening to lower the United States' triple-A credit rating, saying there is a small but rising risk that the government will default on its debt. The credit rating agency says it will review the federal government's rating because the White House and Congress are running out of time. (AP) was up more than 150 points during his testimony to Congress and closed up 45.

The nation was creating about 200,000 jobs a month this spring. But hiring slowed almost to a standstill in June, with 18,000 new jobs. It takes about 125,000 a month just to keep up with population growth.

"If we went so far as to default on the debt, it would be a major crisis because the Treasury security is

GOP Plan Lauded

Democratic congressional leaders responded positively Wednesday to Senate Minority Leader Mitch McConnell's "backup plan" for raising the federal debt ceiling. But the Republican's proposal was rejected Wednesday by House Majority Leader Eric Cantor, R-Va. "Currently, there is not a single debt limit proposal that can pass the House of Representatives," Cantor said in a statement issued 90 minutes before the fourth-straight day of White House negotiations on debt reduction. viewed as the safest and most liquid security in the world," Bernanke said. "It's the foundation for ... much of our financial system."

When asked whether interest rates would go up for average Americans, Bernanke said: "Absolutely." The Fed has said that temporary factors, such as high gas prices and manufacturing disruptions caused by the earthquake and tsunami in Japan, are partly to blame for the economy's sudden sluggishness.

Drug Helps Prevent HIV

Studies say pill stops virus' spread in gay men, heterosexuals

Atlanta

The AIDS drug Truvada, already shown to help prevent the spread of HIV in gay men, also works for heterosexual men and women, two studies in Africa found. Experts called it a breakthrough for the continent that has suffered most from AIDS.

"These studies could help us to reach the tipping point in the HIV epidemic," said Michael Sidibe, executive director of the United Nation's AIDS program, in a statement Wednesday as the study

The cost of a 30-day supply of Truvada in U.S. pharmacies. (AP)

Supply and Demand

Health officials said it's far from clear

how preventive use of a drug such as Truvada will play out. How many people would want to take a pill each day to reduce their risk of HIV infection? Would they become more sexually reckless? Another issue: There already is a supply problem. In Africa, 6.6 million people are now on AIDS drugs, but 9 million people who are eligible for the treatment are on a waiting list, according to the World Health Organization. In the U.S., many state assistance programs that help people access AIDS medications also have waiting lists. (AP) results were announced.

The prevention drug is Truvada, a pill already on pharmacy shelves to treat people with HIV. It's made by Gilead Sciences Inc. of Foster City, Calif.

Earlier research with Truvada found it prevented the spread of HIV to uninfected gay men. But experts were thrilled Wednesday at the first compelling evidence that AIDS medications can prevent infection between men and women. The U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, which gave advice last fall for use of the preventive drugs among gays, is now developing guidance for heterosexuals in this country.

In both studies, participants also were offered counseling and free condoms, which may help explain the relatively low overall infection rate. MIKE STOBBE (AP)

Attacks Trigger Terror in Mumbai

Officials: Terrorists likely plotted triple blasts at rush hour

Mumbai, India

Three coordinated bombings tore through the heart of India's busy financial capital during rush hour Wednesday, killing 21 people and wounding 141 in the worst terror attack in the country since the 2008 Mumbai siege.

Bodies were strewn in Mumbai's crowded neighborhoods and markets. Doors were ripped off storefronts, motorcycles were charred and a bus stop was shredded.

Prime Minister Manmohan Singh condemned the blasts and appealed to the people of Mumbai "to remain calm and show a united face."

There was no immediate claim of responsibility, and Indian officials refused to speculate on who might be behind the blasts.

Indian officials have accused Pakistan's powerful spy agency of helping coordinate earlier attacks, including the deadly Mumbai siege. Peace talks between the countries were suspended after the siege and resumed only recently.

Pakistan's government expressed distress about the loss of lives and injuries, and President Obama also condemned the "outrageous attacks."

Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton said she will go ahead with her plans to visit India next week despite the bombings. Standing with India "is more important

The bombings began at the famed Jhaveri Bazaar jewelry market at 6:54 p.m. A minute later, a blast hit the busy business district of Opera House. At 7:05 p.m., the third bomb exploded in the crowded neighborhood of Dadar in central Mumbai, police said.

Report Details Clergy Abuse Cover-Ups in Ireland

Dublin

A new investigation into the Catholic Church's cover-up of child abuse found Wednesday that a rural diocese and its bishop ignored Irish church rules requiring all suspected molestation cases to be reported to police — and the Vatican encouraged this concealment.

The government, which ordered the probe into 1996-2009 coverups in the County Cork diocese of light from Damascus, Syria. (AP)

Cloyne, warned that parishes across Ireland could pose a danger to children's welfare today given Cloyne's claims to be following church policy while actually ignoring it.

Justice Minister Alan Shatter pledged to pass a new law making it an imprisonable crime to withhold knowledge of suspected child abuse as he published the investigation into the Cloyne diocese.

Wednesday's document detailed the church's suppression of inforanother an 11-pound framed cameo, when he was arrested Tuesday after arriving on a President Hamid Karzai mourns Wednesday in Kandahar, Afghanistan, at the grave of his half-brother, Ahmed Wali Karzai, who was assassinated on Tuesday.

Reeling Afghans Look for Stability

Stunned by slaving of Karzai relative, officials seek safety

Kabul, Afghanistan

Among those offering eulogies for Ahmed Wali Karzai on Wednesday, Fauzia Kofi kept her condolences brief, preoccupied by a troubling thought.

"If they can kill Ahmed Wali, then they can kill any of us," said Kofi, a member of Afghanistan's parliament. "What does this mean for our security?"

Kofi rearranged her security detail on Wednesday, replacing several of her 10 bodyguards who she considered questionable.

After a string of recent attacks targeting top officials, Afghan leaders who are responsible for establishing a stable democracy here have more immediate concerns about their personal safety.

Many say those targeted attacks, such as Tuesday's assassination of President Hamid Karzai's powerful half-brother, Ahmed Wali Karzai, were inside jobs — a sign of the Taliban's growing ability to infiltrate the Afghan security establishment. The Taliban have claimed responsibility for Ahmed Wali Karzai's death.

The first troops to leave Afghanistan as part of the U.S. drawdown handed over their slice of battlefield Wednesday to a unit less than half their size and started packing for home. Many Afghan officials, meanwhile, have survived close calls, and some have come to rely on private security companies.

Kabul-based White Eagle Security coordinates with tribal leaders, police chiefs and provincial officials before hiring its guards. That system has been largely effective, but in Afghanistan, said Ian Hall, a White Eagle official, no vetting process is without its problems.

The phone-hacking scandal engulfing Rupert Murdoch's British media operations threatened to cross the Atlantic Wednesday, with calls by three Democratic senators for investigations into whether Murdoch's News Corp. violated American laws.

Following a British newspaper's report that Murdoch's London-based journalists had tried to tap into phones of Sept. 11 victims, Sens. Jay Rockefeller, Barbara Boxer and Frank Lautenberg urged federal agencies to examine whether any U.S. accounts were hacked. So far, there are no signs of that.

The unfolding scandal has imperiled Murdoch's U.K. media operations, leading on Wednesday to the withdrawal of his $12 billion offer for the country's largest satellite TV operator, British Sky Broadcasting.

"It was central to News Corp.'s strategy, so for the time being, they have obviously been thrown off course," said Sam Hart, a media analyst in London.

The remaining portion of BSkyB that News Corp. sought to purchase from stockholders. (TWP)

The scandal exploded last week after reports that News of the World reporters had hacked the phones of the families of dead British soldiers and a slain 13-year-old girl in 2003, but so far it hasn't touched Murdoch's larger and more profitable U.S. holdings.

News Corp. is primarily a U.S. company, and any impairment of its U.S. operations could seriously damage Murdoch's empire. News Corp.'s businesses include the Wall Street Journal, Fox News Channel and 27 TV stations, including WTTG (channel 5) and WDCA (channel 20) in Washington.

The scandal has led to speculation that Murdoch's U.S. TV-station holdings could be challenged under federal requirements that license holders be of "good character." But that seems like a long shot.

And still, things figure to get worse before they get much better in London. British authorities are now reviewing the company, seeking to determine whether it remains a "fit and proper" media organization. Hart said the company could be forced to divest itself of all or part of its current 39 percent stake in BSkyB.

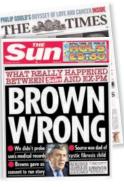

No matter the outcome, Rodney Barker, professor of government at the London School of Economics, said Murdoch's mystique will never be fully restored.

"We tend to think of the business world as a world run by people who are hardly human," said Barker. "Once it begins to look like Rupert Murdoch is not the unstoppable force that he has always been, the shine goes off a bit, the shares go down. ... He's harmed his profitability, [and] in the end his reputation is irreparably damaged anyway." (THE WASHINGTON POST)

'THROWN OFF COURSE'

Murdoch's media empire suffers more blows as the U.K. hacking scandal expands

In the Market?

Rupert Murdoch met with advisers in recent weeks to discuss possible options, including the sale of his remaining British newspapers —the Sun, the Times and the Sunday Times, a report Wednesday in the Wall Street Journal, which is part of News Corp., said. The Journal, citing unidentified people familiar with the situation, said there didn't appear to be any buyers given the poor economics of the newspaper division. (AP)

Under Scrutiny

British police are pursuing two investigations of News International, Rupert Murdoch's U.K. newspaper division of News Corp. One  $investigation\, targets\, the$ allegations of widespread phone hacking, and the other the allegations that News of the World bribed police officers for information. Police have indicated the bribery investigations involve about half a dozen officers. Detectives have arrested eight people so far in their hacking investigation, including Andy Coulson, Prime Minister David Cameron's former communications chief, who was a former editor at News of the World. No one has been charged. (AP)

Police: Man forced 2 women to watch porn in employment agency

Annandale

A 72-year-old man has been charged with forcing two women to watch pornography and sexually assaulting them as they sought help from the employment agency where he worked, police said.

Choon Sik Lee, of Annandale, was arrested and charged with two counts of attempted forcible sodomy on Saturday, according to Lucy Caldwell, Fairfax County police spokeswoman.

At about 9 a.m. Thursday, a 41-year-old woman from the Falls Church area went to the World Employment Agency in Annandale to look for job opportunities, Caldwell said.

The woman was locked in a room and told to watch a video showing sexually explicit acts, the spokeswoman said.

The man then allegedly attempted to force her to perform sexu-..... al acts, and the woman fled the building after telling him she needed to use the restroom, Caldwell said.

Police have identified a 28-yearold woman from Fairfax City who was also sexually assaulted under similar circumstances on May 19.

Neither woman's injury was life-threatening, and no one else was in the office at the time of the assaults, Caldwell said.

Police believe there may be other victims of similar assaults who have not come forward.

"This is an area of the county with a high Asian and Hispanic population," Caldwell said. "Language and cultural issues may be reasons people do not come forward, and the detectives believe there are other unreported incidents."

The Falls Church victim is Asian, and the Fairfax City victim is Hispanic.

Lee is being held at the Fairfax County Adult Detention Center, Caldwell said. JUNE Q. WU (THE WASHINGTON POST)

A new report finds Washington, D.C. is a clean economy leader.

The report that the Brookings Institution issued Wednesday ranks the states and the top 100 metropolitan areas. The report, covering 2003 to 2010, defines the clean economy as the sector producing goods and services with an environmental benefit.

The District of Columbia ranks fourth behind New York, Los Angeles and Chicago in the number of clean economy jobs. The Baltimore area ranks 22nd. (AP)

The U.S. kept its fans breathless again. And just like last time, Abby Wambach — who else? – came up big.

Lauren Cheney and Alex Morgan also scored for the Americans, who will play Japan -3-1 winners over Sweden — on Sunday in Frankfurt.

If the U.S. wins, it would be the first team to claim three World Cup titles.

When the final whistle sounded, the Americans rushed onto the field. Wambach found U.S. coach Pia Sundhage and gave her a bearhug as the pro-American crowd of 25.676 serenaded the team with chants of "U-S-A! U-S-A!" and the party quickly spread across the Atlantic. A thrilling win over Brazil in the quarterfinals captivated fans back home, and a little thing called the workday wasn't enough to deter them.

Dozens of fans crowded around TVs in the Phoenix airport to watch the game, and less than an hour after it ended, "World Cup Finals" was trending on Twitter. "My heroes. Wambach, Boxx, Rapinoe, Solo, That TEAM! Our team!" actor Tom Hanks tweeted. Super Bowl MVP Aaron Rodgers said, "Awesome job US Women, finish it off Sunday now."

But just as they did Sunday against Brazil, the Americans got stronger and stronger as the game went on before Wambach - who scored a critical goal in the waning moments against the Brazilians — came through.

Take Five

Was 2010 really the Year of the Pitcher, as it was frequently called, or perhaps the start of the Era of the Pitcher? The first half of 2011 certainly suggested the latter. Run-scoring reached its lowest level since 1992, leading to some eye-popping statistics — both low ERAs and low batting averages — and perhaps accelerating the growing parity in the game. When offense is down across the board, games are closer, and less distance separates the best from the worst. Here are five story lines to watch in baseball as the second half opens Thursday.

DAVE SHEININ (THE WASHINGTON POST)

Division Races: This sets up as one of the best, most competitive stretch drives in recent memory. None of the six firstplace teams at the break owns a lead of more than 3 1/2 games, while no fewer than 20 teams are within eight games of a playoff spot (including the Nationals, who sit eight games back from the wild card spot). Virtually every day the rest of the season will feature at least one meaningful, intradivisional matchup. Making the pennant race even richer is the fact that four teams that lost at least 93 games in 2010 - the Indians, Pirates, Mariners and Diamondbacks — are within striking distance of a playoff spot.

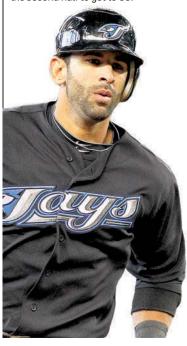

Pitching Landmarks:
Baseball hasn't had more than nine 20-game winners in a single season since 1974, but 13 pitchers reached the break with 10 wins. Tops among them is New York Yankees lefty CC Sabathia, shown, with 13 wins — followed by Justin Verlander and Jair Jurriens with 12 each — giving one or all a shot at becoming the first 25-game winners since Bob Welch in 1990. And Jered Weaver of the Los Angeles Angels

(1.86) and Atlanta's Jurrjens (1.87) are threatening to post the first sub-2.00 ERA over a full season since Pedro Martinez in 2000.

The Lone Slugger: Despite the dominance of pitching, Toronto's Jose Bautista is taking aim at one of the once-hallowed benchmarks of offense — the 60-home run barrier. The 60-homer club had only two members, Babe Ruth and Roger Maris, until the four-year barrage during the Steroids Era (1998-2001), when Mark McGwire, Sammy Sosa and Barry Bonds each topped the mark. Bautista has 31 homers in the first 92 games, putting him on pace for 55. So he will need to get hot in the second half to get to 60.

Deadline: The last two Julys have featured blockbuster trades centered on lefty Cliff Lee. This time, it is safe to say Lee is staying put in Philadelphia, and there doesn't appear to be any game-changing, No. 1 starters available as the July 31 deadline approaches. But it could still be an active market if the Mets decide to trade shortstop Jose Reyes and/or right fielder Carlos Beltran. In the meantime, the Nats could be at the epicenter of the action, with the possible trade targets including starters Jason Marquis and Tom Gorzelanny, outfielder Laynce Nix and catcher Ivan Rodriguez.

Trade

The Abyss: Is it possible that White Sox DH Adam Dunn, shown, is constructing one of the worst offensive seasons ever? Yes, if his first-half performance (.160 batting average, .597 OPS, 117 strikeouts) carries through the second half. No one with a qualifying number of plate appearances has posted a batting average lower than .179 (Rob Deer, 1991) since 1900.

And only Arizona's Mark Reynolds, in 2010, has combined a sub-.200 batting average (.198) with more than 200 strikeouts (211). Amazingly, Dunn has only two hits all year off lefties, resulting in a .031 batting average – which would obliterate the low-water mark achieved by Benji Gil, who posted a .108 mark in 1995.

McIlroy Alone in the Spotlight

After U.S. Open win, N. Ireland star is the top name at British

Golf

The British Open begins Thursday in England, the very country that boasts the world's two top-ranked golfers, Luke Donald and Lee Westwood, respectively. The year's third major championship will unfold on the bumps and knobs of Royal St. George's, named for the martyr whose story is told so often here that Westwood said, "You can't get more English than that."

ald and Westwood - not to mention countrymen Ian Poulter and Paul Casey — would be receiving the attention headed into this year's event. And yet the biggest stir leading up to the first shot may have come Monday afternoon, when tournament officials mistakenly posted a practice round time for one Rory McIlroy.

In fact, McIlroy — scarcely seen on a golf course since his U.S. Open victory last month at Congressional - was practicing, but he did so at Royal County Down back in his native Northern Ireland. But the scramble that began showed that, with Tiger Woods sitting out a second-straight major because of leg injuries, there is one name in golf that suddenly matters more than the others.

"Obviously, Rory is on the forefront of a lot of people's minds, and rightly so," Donald said. "I'm sure a lot of the attention is on him and maybe a little bit more of the pressure, as well."

When McIlroy did finally arrive in Sandwich, England, he acknowledged that what happened at Congressional — when he blistered the Bethesda course in a record 16 under par to win by eight shots was life-changing, but he embraced those changes.

"I'm the sort of person that likes to have people watching," McIlroy said. "I like to have a little bit of a buzz in the atmosphere around the group, and I'll enjoy it." BARRY SVRLUGA (THE WASHINGTON POST)

AS A D.C. TEENAGER in the early 1970s, Chris Martin was electrified by the soul music he heard on radio stations WOL and WOOK and by art he saw at the National Gallery of Art and the Phillips Collection. Now Martin is the subject of a Corcoran retrospective, "Chris Martin: Painting Big," that draws on his adolescent inspirations and aims to excite a new generation of artists.

What message do you try to get across in your paintings?

What I hope to communicate is my own excitement and love, and to pass along some energy or consciousness. The best thing would be for some 14-year-old kid to wander into the Corcoran and get all excited about making paintings.

You created three huge paintings, expressly for this show, that dominate the Corcoran's atrium.

It's not just about, "My paintings are bigger than your paintings." Large-size for me was a key to some of the very intimate experiences I had in front of, say, a Clyfford Still. I just felt like I was inside a whole world, inside a great vision.

How did you conceptualize the pieces fitting into the space?

I wanted to give you an "Alice in Wonderland" feeling, like you were looking at normal-sized paintings in a doll house. I was kind of shocked when they went up, what the size really was. But I was pleasantly surprised that you could see lots of little details.

Chris Martin

ARTIST, 'PAINTING BIG' AT CORCORAN

"It's not just about, 'My paintings are bigger than your paintings.'"

Your work is in the tradition of abstract expressionism, but it's not austerely flat.

I'm not interested in that kind of purity. I think that sort of formal quality should always be the by-product of what an artist wants to say.

These paintings include playful elements, like slices of bread and the footprints of a live chicken.

I think humor is a very important quality. If somebody looks at one of my paintings and just starts laughing, that is a great compliment for me. MARK JENKINS

'Zayed' Nearly Larger Than Life

A massive troupe tells the story of a beloved Arabian father figure

Dance

D.W. Griffith, the film director famous for his casts of thousands, has nothing on Ivan Caracalla, director of the Caracalla Dance Theatre's "Zayed and the Dream." The show, which will be performed at the Kennedy Center this weekend, expands the mythology surrounding Zayed bin Sultan Al Nahyan, the real-life founding father of the United Arab Emirates. Using dance and traditional drama, it tells the story of seven horsemen who are searching for the man destined to bring peace and stability to that region of Arabia.

Handling the story of Zayed, who died in 2004 after ruling the United Arab Emirates for 30 years, is similar to doing a play about George Washington — you'd better get it right.

"He's the father of the region, and he's loved by everyone," Caracalla says. "It's a very sensitive, difficult subject, doing a theatrical production of a person where people in the audience have lived with him. It's not someone who is 300, 400, 500 years in the past."

Caracalla is careful to point out that "Zayed and the Dream" is no

The dance show "Zayed and the Dream" features more than 100 performers.

Backstory

Director Ivan Caracalla's father, Abdel-Halim Caracalla, founded the Lebanon-based Caracalla Dance Theatre in 1970. "He brought the discipline of Western dance and added Oriental movements," the younger Caracalla says. "He wanted to break down the barriers between us."

documentary — and that the show has many purposes. The Abu Dhabi Authority for Culture and Heritage, which commissioned the project, "wanted to do this show not just to talk about the father of the nation, but to show the culture and heritage of the Arab world."

With more than 100 performers hailing from China, Ukraine, Spain and the United Arab Emirates, the stage gets pretty crowded.

"We aim for the spectacle," Caracalla says. "[The audience] might be a little hesitant — where do I look? Do I look left, look right? But the last scene is where they all come together and they're united in one choreography."

The company had to deal with another problem on this tour — space backstage. "We put up a curtain with a chair, a table and a mirror, and say, 'This is your dressing room." KRISTEN PAGE-KIRBY (EXPRESS)

Vision Quest

A new documentary traces the tale of hip-hop trailblazers A Tribe Called Quest

Music

As a teenager growing up in New York City in the late 1980s, Michael Rapaport listened religiously to hiphop radio station 98.7 Kiss FM. That was where he first heard A Tribe Called Quest.

"I was just taken by the musicality," the actor-turned-director recalls. "Tribe were like superheroes. They were largerthan-life people talking about these everyday things."

The legendary Queens hip-hop group — made up of rapper-producer Q-Tip, rapper Phife Dawg and DJ/producer Ali Shaheed Muhammad — released three groundbreaking records and changed the face of hip-hop throughout the 1990s. (Rapper Jarobi White has floated in and out of the band, recently touring again with Tribe.) They gained a loyal following of lifelong fans — including Rapaport. He was there when Tribe played its breakup show in 1998 and again

Q&A: Phife Dawg

Phife Dawg (Malik Isaac Taylor) opens up about "Beats, Rhymes & Life" and what the future holds for Tribe.

What did you think about having a camera in your face for a few years?

At first, I wasn't really a fan of it. Mike [Rapaport] approached me last out of the group. Everybody had agreed to do it, and I wasn't going to be the one to say no. He's a funny dude, and we cracked jokes and talked about the bum-ass Knicks. By the time the cameras came on, it was like they weren't on.

Does Tribe plan to record again?

That's pretty much up in the air. In my heart of hearts, I hope we'll be able to tour eventually. As far as doing another album, hopefully, it'll happen, because we've owed Jive Records another one since forever. But right now we're concentrating on the film and getting over those emotional scars.

What is your relationship with Q-Tip like these days?

We're cool now. We were finally able to sit down, put everything out on the table. I don't want it to seem like we're the worst of enemies. That's my brother, and family argues sometimes.

How is your health?

My health is fine. Every now and then something might go awry, but it's nothing like what I had to go through from 2004 through 2008. God is good, you know. s.p.

"The people you love the most can be the people you can't stand the most. But ... they're married to A Tribe Called Quest for life."

- MICHAEL RAPAPORT, DIRECTOR OF THE NEW DOCUMENTARY "BEATS, RHYMES & LIFE: THE TRAVELS OF A TRIBE CALLED QUEST," WHICH TRACES THE CAREER OF THE INFLUENTIAL NEW YORK HIP-HOP GROUP AND THE STRAINED RELATIONSHIPS OF ITS

when they played a reunion show in 2008, and those experiences inspired him to make "Beats, Rhymes & Life: The Travels of A Tribe Called Quest," opening Friday at E Street Cinema.

The documentary marks the directorial debut for the actor, who is perhaps best known for roles on "Friends" and "Prison Break." He spent three years filming the group at home and onstage, and the result is a smart, funny and surprisingly poignant film chronicling the rocky relationships between the Tribe members — most prominently Q-Tip and Phife Dawg.

Lifelong friends who started rapping before they were 10 years old, the two helped to define Tribe's unique boho musical style but grew apart with each new record. Phife's battle with diabetes, which involved an emergency kidney transplant in 2008, prompted a round of reunion shows to defray his medical costs and inspired some of the most moving scenes in "Beats, Rhymes & Life." But the film captures some of their friendship's tougher moments, too: At one point, Phife and Q-Tip nearly come to blows backstage.

Still, Rapaport insists the two are friends and as close as brothers. Of course, "sometimes you just hate your brother," he laughs. "The people you love the most can be the people you can't stand the most. But whether they like it or not, they're married to A Tribe Called Quest for life." STEPHEN M. DEUSNER

Norway's New Sound

Thomas Dybdahl has more than 10 years of hits packed for his first U.S. headlining tour

Music

Thomas Dybdahl is one of the greatest singers of the past 10 years — and you probably haven't heard of him. But one listen to his moving tenor, which can dip into a warm baritone then swing back up into a Prince-ly falsetto, and you'll know why this Norwegian singer-songwriter is huge in his homeland.

Dybdahl's poetic lyrics are in English, but his pipes are what caught the attention of producer Larry Klein, who's also handled recordings by Joni Mitchell and Herbie Hancock. When Klein started his Strange Cargo label, the first artist he picked was Dybdahl, who's now five albums into a decade-long career. This year's "Songs" is a collection of those records' finest moments, providing an introduction to an artist whose folk-rock style is reminiscent of Tim and Jeff Buckley but who also draws from soul and contemporary classical music.

While recording his previous

"I'm very curious about what people are going to think ... of me as a voice and a songwriter in the States."

album, 2010's "Waiting for That One Clear Moment," Dybdahl realized he "wanted to do almost like a soul-funk record but more basement style. I wanted there to be a feel of this sad guy with a guitar in the middle, but I wanted to disguise it with all these other elements."

Though it's his first introduction to most American listeners, "Songs" isn't Dybdahl's first foray into the States: To promote his 2007 record, "Science," he toured the U.S. as the opener for fellow Norwegian Sondre Lerche. This time out, Dybdahl's the headlining act, and he's ready to find his audience.

"I'm very curious about what people are going to think, not necessarily about the record, but of me as a voice and a songwriter in the States," he says. "The main challenge is, 'Who do we think is going to like this record — and how do we find them?" CHRISTOPHER PORTER

A Lawyer's Lasting Legacy

A new bio examines the life of legal legend Clarence Darrow

Books

You may know Clarence Darrow, the greatest trial lawyer of the 20th century, from such legendary cases as 1925's Scopes Monkey Trial, in which he defended teaching evolution in schools, or his 1924 defense of child-murderers Leopold and Loeb, in which he argued against capital punishment. Darrow was larger than life even during his lifetime, and he lives today in every literary and cinematic depiction of a showman lawyer fighting for the little guy. We spoke to John A. Farrell about his new biography, "Clarence Darrow: Attorney for the Damned" (Doubleday, $32.50).

Darrow's most famous literary nod is in "Inherit the Wind," which fictionalizes the Scopes trial. Has he inspired other characters?

He's in Richard Wright's "Native Son" and Theodore Dreiser's "American Tragedy." Darrow could have almost fit right into a Raymond Chandler book — the white knight who knew that he was cruising mean streets.

Clarence Darrow was a legal celebrity and inspired many literary characters.

"Darrow could have almost fit right into a Raymond Chandler book."

— JOHN A. FARRELL, AUTHOR,
"CLARENCE DARROW: ATTORNEY FOR THE DAMNED"

He was a crusader, but there are lots of crusaders. Did the fact that he was an incredible speaker help build his legend?

When he first started making these big arguments, he would talk for three days. Literally. Three days, without notes. Massive feats of concentration and focus. There would be near-riots to try to get into the courtroom when he spoke.

Lawyers don't do that anymore?

The law is more technical and based on briefs and precedent than on oratorical fireworks. You wouldn't be allowed to speak for three days.

Is Darrow's tradition being carried on in modern legal culture?

Death penalty defense lawyers in Texas or Illinois are amazing individuals that show that kind of conscience that Darrow had, but they don't get the headlines anymore because they're seen as dreamers, idealists — we don't like that anymore. FIONA ZUBLIN (EXPRESS)

Sad Songs To Make You Cry

Cass McCombs hails from an impressive line of slightly sullen folk-rock warblers

Music

Singer-songwriter Cass McCombs is a perfect amalgam of the best folky heartbreakers from the past 40 years. Such familiarity is one reason the 31-year-old has been earning critical raves for nearly a decade: His intimate, low-lit serenades evoke the best elements of legends old and new.

He's Leonard Cohen without the gravitas, or Roy Harper without the ax skills. He's Conor Oberst without the pretty-boy looks — or Will Oldham with the looks. He's Elliott Smith without the crushing depression; just the relentless, everpresent sort.

And though McCombs is a bit of a contrarian — he insisted that some interviews for his new album, the defiantly slow-motion "Wit's End," be done via U.S. Postal Service — he's more accessible than your real legendary loons of folk, like Syd Barret or Skip Spence. That's why we're limiting our Cass McCombs Musical Family Tree to five strong limbs: These are the men who used their guitars as sickles and their hearts as compasses, clearing a path for McCombs' brand of vagabond mope folk.

Experimental Procedure

Dirge rocker EMA strikes out on her own to make a joyful noise

Music

South Dakota doesn't exactly have a reputation for its booming experimental noise-rock scene. But that's where singer-songwriter EMA — a Sioux Falls, S.D., native — first dreamed up the dark avant-garde sound that's earned her comparisons to such dirgey indie legends as Kim Gordon and PJ Harvey.

Born Erica M. Anderson, the sultry performer got her start in punk and swamp-rock bands as a teenager, an early education that would influence her distinctive boundary-pushing style.

"Even though I had no concept where these ideas came from, I'd be, like, 'All right, I want everybody to just rock out during this part and improvise. I'm going to say some weird spoken-word poetry, then at the end of this song, we're all just going to make a ton of noise."

This youthful experimentation didn't exactly fit in with the vibe of Anderson's hometown. "It made a lot of people scratch their heads in South Dakota," she says. "But it would have been great in L.A."

When she headed west for college, Anderson discovered the crowd of feedback fans she was searching for. She hooked up with cult noise band Amps for Christ, and later formed Gowns with Ezra Buchla, vocalist for Los Angeles band the Mae Shi. Gowns became known for its explosive live shows after its 2007 debut, "Red State," but the band burned up soon after 2009's "Broken Bones.

Anderson then decided to strike out on her own. "I finally just had to get pushed out the door where there was no more safety net," she says. "It was obvious to everyone else, but I was just scared to do it."

Her May debut, "Past Life Martyred Saints," picks up where Gowns left off in some ways, but also exposes a brasher, more confrontational Anderson. The songs buzz with eerie melodies and haunting lyrics, but Anderson warns listeners not to look too deeply into grim confessionals like "Marked" and "Butterfly Knife."

"I don't know if people realize that there's almost something akin to humor or camp on it," she says of the record. "When you think of stand-up comics, some of the most effective ones are the funniest because they're hitting really close to the bone," she explains. "I feel like my motivation lyrically is something like that." KRISTINA GRAY

Red All Over

This week it's all about Harry, with Thursday's midnight opening of "HARRY POTTER AND THE DEATHLY HALLOWS: PART II."

But we're partial to Harry's ginger best friend, Ron (Rupert Grint, above). Here we salute other cinematic redheads. K.P.K.

1 Claire Standish

Besides breaking the rule that redheads shouldn't wear pink, Molly Ringwald taught us in 1985's "The Breakfast Club" that using your cleavage to apply lipstick is not only possible, but it will make you popular!

2 Lance

Eric Stoltz's turn as a crazy drug dealer in 1994's "Pulp Fiction" scared us off heroin and bathrobes forever. And possibly also EpiPens.

3 Amber Waves

The mother figure to a bunch of porn stars, Julianne Moore's character in 1997's "Boogie Nights" is the moral center of the film, even when she's absolutely coked out of her mind.

4 Scott Evil

Everyone has daddy issues, but the "Austin Powers" series shows that they can get really nasty when your dad refuses to listen to your plans that DON'T allow your archenemy plenty of time to escape.

5 Gloria Cleary

We partially trace the success of "Bridesmaids" to Isla Fisher's 2005 performance in "Wedding Crashers" as an absolutely nutty, sex-crazed piece of work that helped her steal the show right out from under Rachel McAdams' nose.

Errol Morris' new doc examines a 1977 sex scandal that ruled the British tabloids

Screen

So, there's this story about a beauty queen named Joyce. She falls in love with a guy named Kirk. A devout Mormon, he moves to England to do his missionary work; Joyce follows. Then she kidnaps him, ties him to a bed and sexually abuses him. She goes back to the States, is sentenced in England, and eventually clones her dog in South Korea.

Or, there's this story about a lapsed Mormon named Kirk who is forced to go to England, spends intimate time with a beauty queen named Joyce in a cottage, and is pressured by the Mormon church to accuse her of kidnapping. She goes back to the States, is sentenced in England, and eventually clones her dog in South Korea.

Both stories — plus whatever shades of gray lie in between — are the subject of Errol Morris' new documentary, "Tabloid," out Friday. Joyce McKinney is the main focus of the film (Kirk Anderson, who is now married with children and living in Utah, refused to speak with Morris) and the guide to what the British tabloid press dubbed "The Case of the Manacled Mormon." As in many of Morris' films (most notably 1998's "The Thin Blue Line"), the narrator here proves particularly unreliable — a fact that Morris celebrates.

"This dream that there's some urtext, that there's some kind of narration which is the absolute truth, I think, misses a deep point about the nature of narration and storytelling," Morris says.

The other storytellers here are members of the British tabloid media, which spun the 1977 case into a Casey Anthony-like furor. Peter Tory, who reported on the case for the Daily Express, is clearly aware of the power his words held, as he talks about how Anderson was tied to a bed. Then there's a beat, and he says "Chained to a bed. 'Chained' is a much better word."

"That's my favorite moment in the whole movie," Morris says. "It tells you everything you need to know," about how simple word selection brings in connotations of unwillingness. "People do ask to be voluntarily tied up, but do they ask to be voluntarily chained?"

The only person who knows (and who's talking) is McKinney. "She is my one person who was actually in that cottage," Morris says. "And there's truth, there's falsity, but can we ever fully establish it? Do we know what happened in that love cottage for certain? We don't know." KRISTEN PAGE-KIRBY (EXPRESS)

WRITTEN BY EXPRESS' KRISTEN PAGE-KIRBY

Drinking kills the pain of living for characters in Mary Ellen Bute's 1966 film version of James Joyce's "Finnegan's Wake."

A Simple Little Story

Reading James Joyce is like swimming in a fast-moving river: You can either let it carry you along and risk a gory death upon being smashed into some rocks, or you can struggle against it only to meet a less-gory death by drowning. Either way, the text will get you, but it's going to be fun! Now imagine not only reading Joyce, but also adapting him for the screen: Even thinking about making "Ulysses" into a screenplay is enough to give anyone a stroke. But Mary Ellen Bute took on the Irish master (though not "Ulysses" — she wasn't that masochistic) with her 1966 film "Passages From James Joyce's 'Finnegans Wake,'" which is showing at the National Gallery of Art. Bute was a highly regarded experimental filmmaker, which made her a natural to take on a novel that took Joyce 17 years to write and has sentences such as "countlessness of livestories have netherfallen by this plage, flick as flowflakes, litters from aloft, like a waast wizzard all of whirlworlds." Before the main film, you get to see Bute's 1956 short "The Boy Who Saw Through," which features a 12-year-old Christopher Walken. Now we can see whether he was just as creepy before he hit puberty! NEW RHYMES: Lil Wayne continues his seemingly never-ending post-prison tour on Saturday with a stop at Jiffy Lube Live. Earlier this week, Wayne announced that his oft-delayed "Tha Carter IV" album would finally see release on Aug. 29. In the interim, he dropped a free mixtape, "Sorry 4 the Wait," which finds Wayne rapping over Adele's "Rolling in the Deep."

Take Your

Elevate your picnic with these quality takeout treats — baskets sold separately

With its long days, ideal beach weather and abundant local produce, July is the perfect time to enjoy a meal outdoors (it isn't National Picnic Month for nothing). But there's more to a great picnic than simply the right time and place. You'll also need unfussy, flavorful food that travels well and a few cold drinks — hungry friends are optional but highly recommended. Here are some suggestions for top-notch treats to fill your picnic basket. KATIE ABERBACH (EXPRESS)

Skip the drive-through: Michel Richard's Central offers its own spin on fried chicken buckets. The meal — available in two-piece ($20), four-piece ($30) and six-piece orders ($35) — includes Dijon dipping sauce, mashed potatoes and chicken nuggets. Central's chicken stands out because of its unconventional preparation, says executive chef Jason Maddens. The chicken is poached, covered in a mousse and breaded. Then, it descends into the deep fryer (but only for about 30 seconds). "It comes out extremely crispy in my opinion, crispier than the chicken at KFC and healthier," Maddens says. 1001 Pennsylvania Ave. NW: 202-626-0015. Centralmichelrichard.com. (Federal Triangle)

This is the meal for beer drinkers: "Anything cold and carbonated goes well with this," Maddens says.

LURISIA

Ease Into Eating Mode

Can't think beyond breakfast? Palena Market can supply you with the makings of an alfresco brunch. The café next to Frank Ruta's fine-dining fixture sells curated snacks and beverages, including jars of Palena's house-made pickles ($5) and Lurisia Italian sodas ($2.50-$3). But the treats behind the bakery case are the market's true stars. Try the crusty sourdough and pumpernickel loaves ($6-$8), which Ruta recommends topping with fruit mostarda (an Italian spread that's also sold at the shop). On Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays, doughnuts in lemon-glazed ($2) and chocolate-frosted ($2.50) flavors "fly off the shelves," Ruta says. Other standouts are fried risotto balls ($1.50 each) and fruit tartlettes ($3). 3529 Connecticut Ave. NW; 202-537-9250, Palenarestaurant.com. (Cleveland Park)

For the freshest doughnuts, stop by as soon as the market opens, Ruta says. "On Fridays, we usually sell out by noon, and on Saturdays and Sundays, they're gone by about 1 p.m."

Substantial Centerpieces

When it comes to lunchtime, sandwiches are key. Find subs at Italian mecca A. Litteri ($4.50-$8.95). The Classic Italian sub showcases the deli's freshly sliced capicola, Genoa salami, mortadella and prosciuttini (cured and peppered ham) on bread from Catania Bakery (1404 North Capital St. NW). For madeto-order combos, choose from toppings such as mozzarella and smoked turkey, but heed owner Mike DeFrancisci's warning: "More is not always better. I like to stick with two meats and two cheeses." Ask for oil and vinegar on the side to reduce sogginess. 517-519 Morse St. NE; 202-544-0184, Litteris.com. (New York Avenue)

Don't leave Litteri's without picking up a few chocolatecovered mini-cannoli, which are filled in-house ($1 each).

Big, Bold Bites

You'll find tasty subs and panini at Adams Morgan's A.M. Wine Shoppe, which also sells gourmet antipasti such as marinated artichokes ($11 per pound). The creative sandwich menu includes the Admorghese sub, featuring finochino (a fennel seeddappled salami), mortadella, cooked prosciutto and provolone, topped with a spicy blend of shredded pickles and carrots ($7.50). Another option is the A.M. Cubano panini, made with pork confit, cooked prosciutto and comte Gruyère cheese ($7.50). Owner Andrew Akre recommends pairing sandwiches with a rose such as the A l'Ombre des Fontaines ($14.50).

"This particular rose has a very light body, but it's not wimpy or boring; it's very crowd-pleasing," Akre says. 2122 18th St. NW; 202-506-2248, Amwineshoppe. com. (Dupont Circle)

Get a Little On the Side

Fill holes in your spread at Cork Market. The shop which also makes its own buttermilk fried chicken, Peruvian grilled chicken and sandwiches as part of its specialty picnic baskets ($25-$40) — sells prepared salads, soups and baked goods in addition to meats and cheeses. Try the garlicky ratatouille made with eggplant, zucchini and tomatoes ($6), or the zesty tuna Nicoise salad ($8). For a cheese plate, owner Khalid Pitts recommends picking up a wedge of Mahon (a Spanish cow's milk cheese) or cheddar, hard cheeses that travel better than gooey slices. Then again, "people really have a hankering for soft goat cheeses, which are great for dipping crackers in," Pitts says. 1805 14th St. NW; 202-265-2674; Corkdc. com. (U St.-Cardozo)

Khan's Grill brings made-to-order eats and homemade whiskeys to H Street

New Spot

The H Street corridor is fast becoming one of the most diverse dining destinations in the District. Things just got even more interesting with the addition of Khan's Grill & Bar, which opened in late March. "We wanted to bring something unique," says general manager Nate Oser. "The Queen Vic does the British pub thing, Dangerously Delicious does pies, and now we're bringing Mongolian barbecue. It's a good mix."

The Vision: This playful Asian grill and sports bar boasts a giant projection screen and several flat screens showing D.C. teams' games, and an impressive circular grill where meals are cooked to order. There's even a brass gong that patrons get to bang after tipping the cook.

Eats: If you want freshly grilled stir-fry, you start out at the buffet and fill a bowl with your choice of ingredients. Selections include noodles, tofu and a mix of vegetables. Then you fill a small cup with your choice of eight homemade sauces: sweet bulgogi (Korean barbecue sauce), spicy bulgogi, teriyaki, sweet and sour, barbecue, Szechuan (a red chili-based hot sauce), honey mustard and garlic. You hand all this to one of the chefs, who will add your choice of chicken, beef ($10 at lunch, $12 at dinner) or shrimp ($12 at lunch, $14

Employees at Khan's Grill & Bar work the circular grill, where meals are made to order.

Homemade whiskeys cure in miniature oak casks behind the bar at Khan's.

Atmosphere

H Street residents and hungry souls who work in the area come in during the day to mix up their lunch routines, while sports fans make up the grill and bar's nighttime crowd.

at dinner) and stir-fry everything. Be prepared to wait — it takes five to 15 minutes to complete an order, depending on how many diners are in line ahead of you.

If you don't want to build a meal, the bar menu boasts half a dozen options (available from 4 p.m. till midnight during the week and until 1 a.m. on weekends). The two standouts are the donkatsu — an apple-and-kiwimarinated pork chop cutlet that's fried, cut into strips and topped with a little plum sauce ($10); and the sweet and fiery Dragon's Breath wings ($9).

Drinks: If you want some spirits with your stir-fry, Khan's offers close to 20 whiskeys, including two Japanese brands, Hibiki and Yamazaki ($18). Oser is also overseeing the creation of two house whiskeys — a single malt and a rye — which are curing in miniature oak casks behind the bar and will be available for purchase later this summer. Be forewarned: Oser estimates that the whiskeys will be more than 120 proof. NEVIN MARTELL

Let Me Hide Myself in Thee

CLEFT FOR ME: Cast members of "Rock of Ages" sport their '80s finest in the touring show, now at the National Theatre. Apparently, this musical contains BOTH "Don't Stop Believin'" and "I Want to Know What Love Is," so we double-dare you to go and not sing along. Soulfully. While swaying side to side, eyes closed and fists clenched in pure, unadulterated emotion.

OsteoArthritis Sufferers Experience Dramatic Long-Term Pain Relief In Clinical Study

Pain Relief Without a Prescription

A clinical study published in the Journal of Rheumatology evaluated the pain relieving effectiveness of JointFlex® Pain Relieving Cream verses a placebo. JointFlex is a non-prescription pain relieving cream that is available in retail stores everywhere. The eight-week clinical trial involved 63 patients who had suffered from chronic osteoarthritis knee pain for an average of 10 years!

Fast Acting, Effective Pain Relief

The study clearly showed that the users of JointFlex experienced substantial pain relief shortly after application. The study confirmed what thousands of satisfied JointFlex customers around the world already know... JointFlex helps you achieve a better quality of life because of its powerful and fast-acting pain relieving action. But there's more!

LONG-TERM IMPROVING Pain Relief

The users of JointFlex also experienced a totally unexpected and dramatic result. With continued use, a majority obtained long-term pain relief that continued to improve throughout the entire eight-week study. But that's not all!

Effective Pain Relief!

Even more amazing, one-third of the JointFlex users had their pain gradually decrease to the point where it was completely or nearly completely eliminated! By using JointFlex daily as directed, you too may be able to substantially reduce or even eliminate that arthritis pain that's been nagging you for years.

The gradual and continual improvement in long-term pain relief observed in the JointFlex clinical study was found to be consistent with previous studies conducted with orally administered Glucosamine and Chondroitin Sulfate.¹ As with any medication individual results may vary. Highlights of the study are available by calling the toll free number or they can be viewed online at www.jointflex.com.

How Does JointFlex Work?

JointFlex formulation contains the active ingredient camphor plus Glucosamine and Chondroitin Sulfate for skin conditioning. Only JointFlex offers the proprietary FUSOME® skin delivery system - this technology is believed to be a key factor in the amazing clinical results. This skin delivery system, available only from JointFlex, has been designed to deliver all beneficial ingredients quickly and safely to the skin. The JointFlex formula provides deep penetration and powerful relief when applied to areas where it hurts.<sup>2</sup>

Why Continue To Take Pills?

If you are concerned about the negative side effects of the pills you are taking or tired of the stomach discomfort that often goes along with them, it may be time to switch to JointFlex. Just rub JointFlex onto your painful areas. It's that easy. Soon after applying JointFlex, you won't even know you have it on other than the soothing pain relief you will be experiencing. With JointFlex, there are NO pills to swallow and NO negative systemic side effects to worry about like those associated with NSAIDs or oral prescription pain relievers.

Is Pain Keeping You Awake at Night?

If you are among the millions who cannot get a good night sleep because of nagging arthritis aches and pains, why not try JointFlex? You'll get fast acting pain relief targeted directly where you need it, and by using JointFlex daily, you will get long-term continually IMPROVING pain relief or your money back. With JointFlex, you can finally get a good night sleep. Plus, you can use JointFlex daily with confidence since there is no burning sensation, no lingering medicine smell and no greasy residue.

No Risk Trial Offer

Now you can try JointFlex without any risk. Simply purchase a tube of JointFlex at your favorite store, online, or by phone. Your pain is guaranteed to reduce or disappear shortly after your first application.

To experience the long-term benefits of JointFlex, continue to apply JointFlex daily, preferably twice a day. Use up the entire tube of JointFlex and watch your osteoarthritis pain gradually and continually reduce or disappear altogether. If you're not completely amazed with the results, just send the tube and cash register receipt to us, even if the tube is empty, and we will mail you a refund. No questions asked.

To locate a store near you or to order JointFlex now, call toll free,

The Anti-'Killing'

Those of you who stuck with "The Killing" until the bitter 13th hour and were shocked that the Murderer Was Not Revealed may be forgiven for wanting to give up TV mysteries forever.

Now you don't have to, thanks to the PBS Masterpiece Mystery series "Zen" (9 p.m. on July 17, 24 and 31).

The titular detective, Aurelio Zen (Rufus Sewell, above), is allegedly the only honest cop in Rome. He lives with his mother, who exudes careworn allure as she clucks: "Don't smoke on an empty stomach." He wears Armani.

Unlike the slow, soggy "Killing,"
"Zen" is sunny and action-packed. Episode one has five shootings, one car chase, a swim through a swirling cave river and elevator smooching to the tune of opera. It's also adorably cheesy.
Nearly everyone in the Rome police department has a British accent, and suspects say things like, "Believe me, detective, I have nothing to hide."

Best of all, at the end of each 90-minute episode, the case is CLOSED! But not every viewer will be satisfied. Due to a jumble of characters and mumbled dialogue in the first episode, my wife asked: "Who the hell did it?"

Good Guy Gone 'Bad'

Walter White is TV's ultimate antihero on AMC's 'Breaking Bad'

Television

If you haven't seen AMC's "Breaking Bad," then you probably know it only as that show about the teacher who sells crystal meth. And while Bryan Cranston has won three consecutive Emmys for his portrayal of teacher-turned-drug dealer Walter White, "Breaking Bad" is as much about morality, family and the choices people make as it is about drugs.

Returning for a fourth season on Sunday, "Breaking Bad" picks up right where it left off — with Walt staring at the barrel of a gun. Across town, his partner and surrogate son Jesse Pinkman (fellow Emmy winner Aaron Paul), has just shot the man who would have made both of their lives expendable. No longer in business for themselves, Walt and Jesse spent Season 3 cooking for Gus Fring (Giancarlo Esposito), the seemingly mild-mannered owner of a regional fast-food chain who is also the largest meth distributor in the Southwest. Events near the end of Season 3 led to a fracture in Gus and Walt's relationship, which explains the gun pointed at Walt's face.

Sunday's season premiere deals mainly with the consequences of Walt's and Jesse's actions. One particularly tense and shocking scene (if you're squeamish, take note) will likely go down as the moment Gus, the drug lord, fully arrives. In his world, actions speak louder than words.

When "Breaking Bad" began in 2008, Walt turned to dealing meth only as a means to an end — he had recently been diagnosed with life-threatening lung cancer, and a chemistry teacher's salary wasn't going to cover his family's nest egg.

But Walt's cancer has since gone into remission, and he's made more money than he ever dreamed. With that, however, have come harsh consequences: his wife, Skylar (Anna Gunn), kicked him out of the house when she found out what he was doing, he's endangered the lives of his family members, and he's committed his fair share of murders.

Yet, he continues to cook.

In telling Walt's story, series creator Vince Gilligan is exploring the antihero in a way series television hasn't before. Walt, when we met him, seemed to bear the mark of all things good — as a father, as a husband, as a teacher and as a man. But through three seasons, he's been pushed further and further to the limits of his morality, and it's starting to seem like he may not have any. RUDI GREENBERG (EXPRESS)

Inside Walt's World A primer on three of the supporting players who factor into Walt's saga. R.G.

"Mr. Show's" Bob Odenkirk brings a dose of humor to "Breaking Bad" as Saul Goodman, Walt and Jesse's sleazy attorney.

Walt's estranged wife, Skyler (Anna Gunn), started breaking bad herself last season, insisting that she help launder Walt's money.

Walt's brother-inlaw, DEA agent Hank Schrader (Dean Norris), was hot on Walt's trail until a shootout put him in a hospital bed. EXPRESS & LINDY PROMOTIONS PRESENT...

People tend to stare at 19-year-old Maci Bookout.

"If I go grocery shopping or something it's not that bad, but on the weekends that Bentley's dad has him, and me and my friends go out ... to a club, I can tell that people are watching to see how I'm going to act or what I'm going to do," says Bookout, of Chattanooga, Tenn., mother of a 2-year-old named Bentley and one of the stars of MTV's "Teen Mom," a reality show about kids with kids.

Bookout and her co-stars — Farrah Abraham, Amber Portwood and Catelynn Lowell — made their TV debut on another MTV reality show, "16 and Pregnant." The series was so successful that the network tapped them to star in the "Teen Mom" spin-off. Nielsen says about 3.65 million viewers tuned in to its third season premiere on July 5.

Motherhood has made the teens instant celebrities, with tabloids and bloggers hot on their trail at every change or rumor in their lives.

But Abraham doesn't think that having a baby should make her a celebrity or a role model. "By no means do we think, 'Oh, it's cool to be a teen mom," she says. Lowell, 19, from Port Huron, Mich., has used her celebrity to help teens become more knowledgeable about safe sex and the responsibilities of parenthood.

"All of us kind of agree on one thing. As long as the show is doing its job as far as preventing teen pregnancy and stays educational, the show will continue," Bookout says. ALICIA RANCILIO (AP)

It's Tech N9ne's Time

Music

On a phone call from jail last year, Lil Wayne told a radio show about one of the first rappers he wanted to collaborate with once he got free.

It wasn't someone like Jay-Z or Kanye West. Instead, Lil Wayne blurted out the name Tech N9ne.

The Kansas City, Mo.-based rapper had steadily built a strong grassroots fan base since releasing his first album, in 1999. But Lil Wayne's name-drop breathed new life into his career.

"I had no idea that he knew of me," recalled Tech N9ne, who eventually met Lil Wayne while the rapper was serving his eight-month sentence in New York.

After Lil Wayne's radio shout-out,

A nod from Lil Wayne has helped launch Tech N9ne, shown, into the mainstream.

Tech N9ne said he had an influx of artists and producers who reached out to work with him.

"It made everybody start to pay attention to me," he said.

It shows in Tech N9ne's numbers. His 12th album, "All 6's And 7's," debuted at No. 4 on Billboard's Top 200 and topped the rap charts — a major achievement for an independent artist.

For Tech N9ne, it's been a long journey. Though popular in the underground, he'd long struggled to cross over into the mainstream with his morbid lyrics and gothic-sounding beats.

"It's hard to do for so many years without the help of a major label, but he's stayed creative," said Kenny "Barto" Bartolomei of the production trio group J.U.S.T.I.C.E. League, which has worked with Tech N9ne. "That speaks volumes. Now, people are seeing the true talent that he is."

Horoscope

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your current strategy may be hamstrung by tactics that are out of date. A little more modern thinking can work wonders at this time.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You have much to do, and an early start is advised. Take care that you don't overtax yourself or your resources too early in the day.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You may be tempted to give up for some reason, but what you are trying to accomplish deserves greater resolve — and more time.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You may have need of some timely advice — and you know where to get it. Information that comes to you late is of little good.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) You may not understand what another is up to, but in time you'll realize that he or she has your best interest at heart.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

Never mind what the critics say; you're on the right track, though you may need a little more practice before things fall into place.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

You may be asked the same question again and again — each time the answer will be the same: a resounding "yes."

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

You needn't be in a hurry to fight it out with someone who is really not all that different from yourself. Try talking things over.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) It may seem as though there is no way out for you, but you may actually be overlooking one obvious alternative.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Now is the time for you to pull out all the stops. By day's end, you can have a major personal victory to your credit.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You're at your best when doing something that others say cannot be done — and there may be two or three such endeavors for you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) A friend or family member may not be willing to follow your lead. Why not consider following his or hers instead?
